

Trump-Putin-topmøde kunne forandre verden!

LaRouchePAC Internationale Webcast, 29. juni, 2018

Dagens store nyhed er, at dato og sted for det historiske Trump-Putin-topmøde nu er fastsat. Dette møde, der har været udskudt så længe, har været så længe undervejs, vil nu finde sted i Helsinki, Finland, den 16. juli, 2018.

Engelsk udskrift:

LaRouche PAC Friday Webcast, June 29, 2018

TRUMP-PUTIN SUMMIT COULD CHANGE THE WORLD!

MATTHEW OGDEN: Good afternoon, it's June 29, 2018. My name is Matthew Ogden, and you're watching our weekly Friday evening broadcast from larouchepac.com.

The big breaking news for today is that the date and the location is now determined for the historic Trump-Putin summit.

This meeting, which has been long deferred, a long time coming, will now be taking place in Helsinki, Finland on July 16, 2018.

This, as you can see from our title image, promises to be an extraordinary and historic event. "Trump-Putin Summit Could Change the World!" An announcement was posted on the White House website yesterday when the details of this meeting were revealed.

As you can see here, it reads:

"President Donald J. Trump and President Vladimir Putin of the Russian Federation will meet on July 16, 2018 in Helsinki, Finland.” “Statement from the Press Secretary on a Bilateral Meeting Between the United States and Russia.” It read: “The two leaders will discuss relations between the United States and Russia and a range of national security issues.” A similar announcement was posted on the Kremlin press service website, which was along very similar lines. This one read: “Vladimir Putin and US President Donald Trump will meet in Helsinki on July 16th. The two Presidents will discuss Russian-US relations and their further development, as well as current international matters.”

We know that there are many such issues which can be discussed and are very important and will be discussed between the President of the United States and the President of the Russian Federation, including the situation in Syria, the situation in Ukraine, and the mounting tensions around the nuclear arms race and situations that are similar. Also, we can maybe presume that the situation in North Korea will be a subject of the discussion between these two Presidents, because both of them have been very intimately involved in bringing this situation forward to the breakthrough that has now been achieved.

Now, President Trump himself, speaking with reporters on Wednesday, so before the details of the summit were actually announced, and before the official announcement was made; President Trump had a discussion with reporters. He reiterated his commitment to working not only with Russia, but with China.

So, this is what President Trump had to say: “As I’ve said from day one, getting along with Russia and with China and with everybody, is a very good thing. It's good for the world, it's good for us, it's good for everybody." This is precisely what we've been saying here at LaRouche PAC. It's this kind of great power relationship – the United States, China, Russia, put India into the mix there, and this is exactly what Lyndon LaRouche has been campaigning for, for years under the rubric of this Four Powers Agreement; that we have to escape from this geopolitical "lose-lose" kind of drive for hegemony and say No. This is now a new system that the world is embracing, and the United States, Russia, China, and other great powers should have a "win-win" relationship. It's only through this kind of collaboration between these leading powers of the world that you can resolve the outstanding, looming issues and challenges which have been threatening world peace and security. North Korea is a perfect example, and we can assume that the other such hotspots and conflict zones can also be resolved in just such a manner; exactly what Helga LaRouche has called over the past two weeks "the Singapore model".

The fact that this meeting is actually going to be taking place in a little bit over two weeks from today, this fact is huge. This meeting has sent the entire trans-Atlantic geopolitical establishment into a state of absolute hysteria. It was precisely this sort of face-to-face summit meeting between President Trump and President Putin which the entire Mueller Russia-gate probe was aimed at preventing. But despite a year and a half of witch hunts and propaganda, this so-called investigation is yielding zero evidence at this point of so-called "Russian collusion" in meddling with the elections.

Despite this attempted coup against President Trump and the intended rapprochement between the United States and Russia, despite these efforts this meeting is going forward, and is poised to be just as historic and potentially even more historic than the last big summit President Trump had; the one between himself and Chairman Kim Jong-un in Singapore.

Let me just go through a couple of examples of the absolute hysterical reaction that we're seeing in the British and Western mainstream press to this announcement. Here's an example in the {Guardian} newspaper. Headline: "UK Nervous over Unpredictable Trump Summit with Putin". Subhead: "British diplomats fear impulsive US President will make Russia a personal offer and leave Europe in the lurch." So, that's a picture of Trump and Theresa May. Then, {The Atlantic} had a similar headline:

"The

Trump-Putin Summit: What the Europeans Fear!" And here's one in {Vanity Fair}: "| 'This Plays to Russia's Advantage!' As Trump Salivates over Putin, Allies Fear Another Diplomatic Disaster."

And then the subhead there, which you may or may not be able to read, says the following: "Just as Trump blew off the G-7 and ran straight into Kim's arms, experts worry the President will clash with NATO and find sucker in Putin. 'The fact is, that he is meeting with Putin right afterwards, and the Putin meeting is going to go really well,' said one analyst. "And NATO, quite possibly, is going to be as bad as G-7.'|"

So there you can see, they're drawing the direct parallel to what happened when President Trump attended the G-7 meeting in Canada and said this institution is irrelevant. He said should be a member and we should return this to the status of the G-8. And he left early and got on a plane to go to Singapore to meet with Kim Jong-un, where he made much more significant history. As that article was saying, the exact same kind of scenario could happen with the NATO summit; where Trump says this is irrelevant, and instead goes and meets with President Putin in Helsinki. And says, we need a new security architecture.

Russia

That would be a good thing, and not a bad thing. The other headlines include the {New York Times}: "As Summit Nears, NATO Allies Have

One Main Worry – Trump". And then the {Washington Post} had a very similar headline: "NATO Members Worry as White House Plans Trump-Putin Summit".

What's interesting is that this is not intended to just be a one-off meeting. This is intended to be the first in a continuing series of such high-level President-to-President bilateral summits. According to reports, US National Security Advisor John Bolton, who was just in Moscow on June 27th to conduct the preliminary rounds of planning for this upcoming summit between Trump and Putin, Bolton told a press conference that it would be possible that President Trump might follow up this meeting by going and attending the Eastern Economic Forum in Vladivostok, Russia, on September 11-13th. So, the month following, have a follow-up meeting, during which he would have another opportunity to sit down with Putin and follow up on what they will discuss during the Helsinki summit on July 16th.

This in and of itself is a very significant thing. The meeting itself is the so-called "deliverable"; that this is the opening of an important relationship. Just as we saw the developing friendship between President Trump and President Xi Jinping with first the Mar-a-Lago summit and then President Trump's personal visit to Beijing for the state visit-plus. We may see a similar process now beginning to unfold between President Trump and President Putin.

So, let me just play a short clip from a webcast that Helga Zepp-LaRouche broadcast earlier this week. This was broadcast before the official announcement confirming the date and the location of this Trump-Putin summit in Helsinki. But what you'll hear is her emphasis on the extraordinary strategic importance of this upcoming meeting. So, here's what Helga Zepp-LaRouche had to say:

HELGA ZEPP-LAROUCHE

: I think it's of strategic importance, because obviously, Trump feels somehow freed, with Russiagate turning into Muellergate, with the very successful Singapore summit [with Kim Jong-un], so I think this is a very, very important development.

But just clinically, I want to mention the fact that the German conservative daily {Die Welt} says this summit would be the absolute catastrophe, because there would be the danger that Trump and Putin would make an agreement, whereby the NATO maneuvers in Eastern Europe are reduced and that Trump would portray himself as the big peace-maker. [laughs] That shows you how absolutely crazy this neo-liberal/neo-conservative on both sides of the Atlantic is: What could anybody who likes to have world peace wish better than that Russia and the United States, which after all are the two most powerful nuclear forces on the planet, if they could come to a strategic agreement?

So, this is a very important, good development. And obviously, this will now occur after the NATO summit and after Trump's short trip to Great Britain, but I think my absolute hunch would be that the two presidents will hit it off very well, because they have basically a better understanding of the strategic situation, than their critics. So that is good news....

This is exactly what should happen, that you have an increasing cooperation among the largest powers in the world: the United States, China, Russia, and as we discussed earlier, there is also some slower motion on the side of India, to come to such an agreement. They have a good relationship with the United States anyway, and also with Russia, but now they are working more closely with China.

I can only repeat it: Those people who are used to thinking in terms of geopolitical blueprints, or paradigms, they should really understand that in the world which has so many problems and so many urgent tasks to solve, the best thing is really if the large powers find a strategic understanding and hopefully, eventually will work together to solve all of these problems. And those people are still caught up in the old, geopolitical, zero-sum game – one wins, the other one must lose – this is a completely ridiculous, old-fashioned, outdated idea. I have called, at the beginning of the year, that this year must become the year when geopolitics is overcome, and with China's New Silk Road, you have already a win-win model of relations, where everybody wins. So I would just urge people to rethink the way they look at the world...

Now, I'm just having the pleasure of reading a very nice book which the Schiller Institute published. It's "The New Silk Road Becomes the World Land-Bridge, Vol. II}, just fresh off the printer, and it has all the conceptions in it for what is necessary to immediately start these large-scale development projects. So I would really think there may be more people who would want to know what is in this book.

OGDEN: Now, as we speak, Helga Zepp-LaRouche is beginning to address an international conference which will be held this weekend in Germany, sponsored by the Schiller Institute. We'll have much more coverage of this conference for you over the weekend as it proceeds. You can expect further in-depth reports during our Monday broadcast here on larouchepac.com. But one of the highlights of that conference is the official release of that new special report that you just saw Helga mention and hold up.

"The New Silk Road Becomes the World Land-Bridge, Volume II.

A Shared Future for Humanity." This was published by the Schiller Institute and it's an extraordinary follow-on to a similar report on that same subject which was published now four years ago.

What I'd like to do is read you some excerpts from Helga Zepp-LaRouche's introduction that is published as the Preface to this report, which she wrote to situate the entire contents of this very extensive report. So, here's what Helga LaRouche's introduction is to this new special report:

"The spirit of the New Silk Road has changed the world for the better much more thoroughly than the trans-Atlantic sector has even remotely understood until now. Since Chinese President

Xi Jinping placed the New Silk Road on the agenda in September 2013 in Kazakhstan, optimism on an unprecedented scale has swept over the developing countries in particular. A sense that poverty and under-development can be overcome in the foreseeable future, thanks to Chinese investments in infrastructure, industry, and agriculture. Geopolitically-oriented circles in the West have not understood that China is implementing a new model of international policy which tackles the deficit which the legacy of colonialism and imperialism has bequeathed up to this day; the absolute lack of development. And because China is thus addressing the existential needs of billions of people, that policy is likely to be the greatest revolution in the history of mankind.

"In the nearly four years that have elapsed since the release of the first 374-page comprehensive study, 'The New Silk Road Becomes the World Land-Bridge', in December 2014, numerous projects that were conceptualized in that report have been carried out. Others, such as the Transaqua Project for the revitalization of Lake Chad and the development of a waterway system for 12 African countries have been agreed upon by the governments involved, and feasibility studies are being drawn up.

China's Belt and Road Initiative has become the largest infrastructure program in human history. The Belt and Road Forum in May 2017 brought together 29 heads of state and government, and more than 1200 representatives from more than 140 nations, including this author [Helga Zepp-LaRouche herself]. Hundreds of conferences and seminars on this subject have been held around the world, and more and more countries see that their economic opportunities lie in becoming a hub for the New Silk Road and the Maritime Silk Road for the 21st Century.

"However, it is not only the enormous economic perspectives derived from economic cooperation on a 'win-win' basis that have fundamentally changed the overall strategic situation, but also – and above all – Xi Jinping's idea of a 'community of shared future for mankind'. With the Silk Road initiative and the idea of a 'community of shared future for mankind', Xi Jinping has developed a totally new model for relations among the nations of the world which supersedes the previous geopolitical rivalries of the blocs with the higher idea of one, single mankind, whose sovereign states cooperate with one another to their mutual benefit. As Xi Jinping explained in his October 8, 2017

report to the 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China, he is pursuing the vision of initiating developments by 2050 that allow for the peaceful coexistence of all sovereign nations on Earth, and a happy life for people. Largely unnoticed or disregarded by the euro-centric or America-centric view of the mainstream media, is the fact that entirely new strategic orientations are developing in Asia as a result of this grand design and that Asian countries are in the process of overcoming past historical antagonisms and working out a new type of cooperation. Numerous countries which were played against each other until recently in geopolitical scenarios, now see a much more promising perspective in a strategic realignment of cooperation for mutual benefit and for a higher idea of the common development of all mankind.

“The historical breakthrough that President Trump and Chairman Kim Jong-un were able to achieve in Singapore on June 12th, involving an agreement on full nuclear disarmament in return for security guarantees which China wants to help provide, as well as the lifting of sanctions and North Korea’s economic development, would have been unthinkable without the spirit of the New Silk Road that has triggered throughout Asia the optimistic mindset that genuine changes for the better are, indeed, possible. The economic modernization of North Korea pledged by Trump, Russia, and China, which will make it ‘prosperous and wealthy’ corresponds to the intention discussed at the inter-Korean summit between Moon Jae-in and Kim Jong-un in April, and prior to that at the Eastern Economic Union forum in Vladivostok in September 2017. Both Koreas are to be included in the integration of the Belt and Road Initiative, and the Eurasian Economic Union, including the connection of the future trans-Korean railway to the Trans-Siberian Railway and to China’s transportation network.

“Another good example of this is the policy change in Japan and in India. Following a two-day summit between President Xi Jinping and Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi in April of this year, the two most populous states in the world recalibrated their relations to each other. Speaking at the Shangri-la Dialogue in Singapore on June 1st, Modi appealed to the world to rise above divisions and rivalries, and to opt instead to work together. He referred to the deep conceptions of Vedantic philosophy going back to the Vedas and Upanishads of ancient India; namely the idea of the ‘essential oneness of all’ and the idea that every individual soul is that being in full and not part of that being. Modi concluded, ‘This world is at a crossroads. There are temptations of the worst lessons of history, but there is also a path of wisdom. It summons us to a higher purpose; to rise above a narrow view of our interests and recognize that each of us can serve our interests better when we work together as equals in the larger good of all nations. I am here to urge all to take that path.’

“Xi Jinping has developed a new model for relations among major powers based on the principles of absolute respect for the sovereignty of others, of non-interference in internal affairs, and respect for the respective other political and social system.

From this standpoint, it is most fortunate that President Trump and President Xi, from the very first meeting of the former and the latter at Mar-a-Lago in April 2017, established an exceptionally friendly relationship with one another. Xi returned the invitation to Trump's private residence with a state visit-plus for Trump to China in November. Despite all the tensions with China over differences of opinion as to how to overcome the trade deficit, Trump has repeatedly called Xi a good friend. But it is above all the historic breakthrough with North Korea that would have simply been unthinkable without the relationship between Donald Trump and Xi Jinping. "The world is changing dramatically, and the change is happening in Asia. The new era must be based on the best traditions of all the cultures involved. In China, Confucius stand for the ideal of self-perfection through lifelong learning and ennoblement of the character as a precondition of harmonious coexistence in the family, the nation, and among nations. The notion of the mandate of heaven implies that the duty of government is to ensure the common good. In Indian culture, this corresponds to the idea of dharma; the idea that universal laws set the rules for shaping relations on Earth; i.e., that the cosmic order is also valid on Earth. For European civilization, which America belongs to, the equivalent is the humanist tradition. An expression of this approach are the ideas of Nicholas von Cusa, the {Coincidentia Oppositorum}; that is, that human reason is capable of a higher level of thinking on which the contradictions of the intellect are resolved. Order in the macrocosm is only possible if all

the microcosms develop in the best possible way and to their mutual benefit. The 1648 Treaty of Westphalia is built on this foundation, which gave rise to international law; as is the philosophy of Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz and Friedrich Schiller.

In Russia, the same basic principle is expressed in the idea of Vladimir Vernadsky that the significance of the noosphere is constantly increasing over that of the biosphere; and that therefore, the role of creative reason as a physical power increases.

“The spirit of a new beginning, the cultural optimism about imminent breakthroughs in fundamental research and an unprecedented dynamic towards the betterment of mankind’s living conditions, all this characterizes the development in Asia.

And

this optimism has long since rubbed off on Latin America and Africa. We in Europe and the United States should recognize exploit the tremendous potential it will mean for our economies
and

if we join in this win-win cooperation. Provided we count on qualitative innovation as a source of social wealth, collaboration with the New Silk Road is by no means a threat.

On

the contrary, it offers us the urgently needed chance to rediscover our true identity.”

Now, this is the introduction, or an excerpt from the introduction that Helga Zepp-LaRouche wrote to this new report which, as I mentioned, is just being debuted and released this weekend at the major Schiller Institute in Germany. This report, as you can see, is available and will be circulated. It’s something you should definitely get your copy of. We’ll let you know how you can access that once that's available. As you can see, this report, "The New Silk Road Becomes the World Land-Bridge", lays out the blueprint for this New Paradigm of civilization. Emphatically this is not written from the standpoint of dry observation as an outsider. This is written from the standpoint of the intellectual leaders of this New Paradigm – Helga Zepp-LaRouche, Lyndon LaRouche, the LaRouche movement – which planted the seeds for what we're now seeing emerging as this dominant dynamic on the globe today, all the way back as we reviewed on our Monday broadcast, all the way back in the early 1990s; but really going back through the '80s, and including into the 1970s when Lyndon LaRouche first proposed in 1975 the idea of a new international economic order in the form of his International Development Bank. You can trace the heredity of that idea all the way to what we're now seeing emerging with this New Silk Road which is now becoming this global dynamic – the World Land-Bridge.

As Helga Zepp-LaRouche said in that introduction, this is cause for extraordinary optimism, but we must absolutely fight to bring the United States and Europe into this new, emerging dynamic. This cannot exist as an adversarial geopolitical rivalry on this planet. Neither one of these paradigms can survive. As Abraham Lincoln said, "A house divided against itself cannot stand." You cannot continue to have this trans-Atlantic, hegemonic type of geopolitical containment operation against China, Russia, and these other emerging economies, and still expect that this New Paradigm will continue to march forward. That will bring us to the cusp of another World War, just as we observed with World War I at the beginning of the 20th Century. This is the so-called Thucydides Trap. Rather, these countries of Western Europe and the United States must recognize that this new win-win dynamic is the pathway toward a shared future for mankind where we can finally overcome the adolescence of mankind and overcome this idea that war is even a possibility for resolving disputes between nations. In the age of thermonuclear weapons, you can no longer have that option. That's why it's absolutely laughable, as Helga Zepp-LaRouche said, for those in the Western mainstream media to say, "Oh, it's a horrible thing for Trump and Putin to meeting, because they might strike a peace deal." That's a ridiculous criticism. In fact, as President Trump has said repeatedly, this kind of relationship between the United States and Russia, and also between the United States and China, and between the United States and everybody else, is a very good thing. Not only for those countries, but for the entire world.

So, with that said, here in the United States, we must continue our campaign for the United States to join this emerging New Paradigm. As we've documented repeatedly, our driving force, our number one agenda here in the United States, is the LaRouche PAC 2018 Campaign to Win the Future. Here you can see, LaRouche's Four Laws for Economic Recovery. This is the New Paradigm for mankind. The United States must join the New Silk Road. It's available. This is the campaign page – lpac.co/yt2018. You can get a copy of this platform which is in mass circulation in the United States, and also become an active member of this entire Campaign 2018.

When we launched this campaign months back, we said this is what's going to be shaping and determining the agenda for the mid-term elections. Well, the mid-term elections are ongoing, and what we're seeing is that indeed, we are in the midst of a very fluid and dynamic situation in the politics here in the United States. As we said in the introduction to this pamphlet, this LaRouche PAC 2018 Campaign to Win the Future, the 2016 elections – which not only elected President Trump above 12 other establishment Republicans; but also saw that Bernie Sanders almost secured the Democratic nomination, if it were not for the political machinations and the massive rigging of that primary by the Hillary campaign – this was a demonstration that party politics as usual, establishment politics as usual, was over in this country. Go back four years. Lyndon LaRouche was already forecasting that that would occur. In his 90th birthday address, Lyndon LaRouche said that in 2012; look, the age of establishment party politics as we know it is over. We're seeing the brewing of a revolt, an insurgency among the American people, where they're going to reject the party establishment of both political parties. Well, that was not just a one-time occurrence in 2016.

What we're watching now is that we are indeed in the midst of an ongoing revolt by the American people against this establishment geopolitics, Wall Street crowd; a revolt which is continuing to pervade and upend both parties. So, demonstrating that the Trump insurgency, the insurgency that carried Trump to number one in the Republican Party, and almost carried Bernie Sanders to become the nominee in the Democratic Party – again, were it not for the rigging by the Hillary Clinton campaign – a demonstration that this is continuing we saw unfolding over the course of this week in Tuesday's primaries. We saw a couple of very surprising, big political upsets on the Republican side, including in South Carolina where Henry McMaster won this primary. He was endorsed at the last minute by President Trump in a move that the entire media establishment said was a huge mistake. He did, indeed, come out on top. Similar situations occurred elsewhere in Republican primaries. But even bigger than those results, were the shocking, surprising results in the Democratic primary in

the Bronx-Queens district in New York City. This seat has been held for 20 years by Joe Crowley, who was considered to be next-in-line to become Speaker of the House behind Nancy Pelosi
if the Democrats regained the majority in the House of Representatives. Crowley never had a primary opponent; he doesn't even live in the district. His family reported had moved out of New York City and had bought a house outside of Washington, DC. But for the first time ever, he faced a primary opponent, and his primary opponent was a 28-year old Latina woman, a daughter of a Puerto Rican and a former volunteer with the Bernie Sanders by the name of Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez.

In

this campaign, Crowley, who's got deep pockets and huge connections to Wall Street, spent $3.4 million in the campaign.

Ocasio-Cortez only spent $200,000. In an absolute shocking victory, Ocasio-Cortez on election night on Tuesday, came out far ahead of Crowley; and not only upset his pathway to becoming the next Speaker of the House, but proved that nobody is safe among the Democratic establishment; just as nobody is safe among the Republican establishment. It's being compared to Doug Brat's victory over Eric Cantor here in Virginia a few years back, which was seen as a bellwether in fact for what later happened in 2016.

But to be honest, this is much bigger, indeed. And it shows you that the revolution that was going on inside the Democratic Party in 2016 is indeed continuing. Just to note, Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, if she does win the November general elections, as she almost 100% will, will also become the youngest woman to be serving in the US House of Representatives.

Helga Zepp-LaRouche actually addressed this victory by Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and the stunning defeat of Joe Crowley at a later point during her webcast earlier this week. I would like to just play you that short excerpt from Helga LaRouche's webcast.

HELGA ZEPP-LAROUCHE

: This Crowley campaign with $3 million, and this 28-year-old woman who won the primary, she only have $300,000 for the campaign. And she campaigned on the fact that Crowley was a tool of Wall Street, and obviously this was the main argument why she won the election. So, I think it is a quite good reason to think that not everything is controlled by the financial oligarchy, that money no longer buys every seat, which it used to do for a long time, and that there is the chance to really change the situation in the world for the better. Now, I want to end by again asking you to join the Schiller Institute, join a Renaissance movement, and help us to distribute these ideas, so that more people can share and join in this optimism, that man {is} indeed greater than his destiny, and that if many people of good will are joining forces together, that — as Schiller says in one of his writings about the revolt of the Netherlands from Spain — that you can bring down even the arm of the strongest tyrant by uniting for a good plan. So please, unite with us, and let's really move civilization in a better domain.

OGDEN: So, that's a very optimistic note from Helga LaRouche. And this indeed proves that we are in very fertile for a political revolution in this country. Do not get trapped into thinking in partisan terms. Do not allow yourself to get sucked down into that level. Think on the level that Helga Zepp-LaRouche just said; if people around the world can unite around a good plan, around the policies which are urgently necessary to resolve the crisis which we're now facing, we can move history forward and we can overcome our destiny.

So, what is that good plan? What is the program to unite around? That's the entire core purpose of the LaRouche PAC 2018

Campaign to Win the Future. LaRouche's Four Laws:

Glass-Steagall. Shut down this Wall Street casino. Erect a firewall; protect the legitimate banking operations in commercial banking in the United States as a means of protecting us from the probability of a trans-Atlantic meltdown of this casino economy.

Then use that to completely recreate the financial processes here in the United States by reinstating the Hamiltonian idea of a national bank. A Third National Bank, or a revival of, what Franklin Roosevelt did with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to use the credit creation capabilities of the Federal government to direct trillions of dollars of credit directly into great projects like we're seeing in China and China's building in Africa and elsewhere. Great projects to rebuild the United States, to employ the American population in high productivity, highly skilled, high paying jobs; and to use that to increase the productivity and the living standards of the United States. Then the entire way that that can be directed forward into the future is to adopt a vision; a vision of space exploration, breakthroughs in the frontiers of science and technology, including fusion power and all the derivatives of that kind of scientific breakthrough. From that standpoint, the United States can join this emerging New Paradigm for a common future for all humanity.

So, that's the vision. We're in the middle of an ongoing political revolution in this country, and it requires leaders, citizens in this country who are able to overcome this idea of partisanship and party politics as usual and say No. We will unite our efforts towards this common destiny, towards these common aims. And do that here in the United States, and then also do that among nations abroad. That's the New Paradigm of politics here in the United States and that's the New Paradigm of international relations on this planet.

We're living in very exciting times; very historic times. I think that this conference that's happening this weekend in Germany could not be scheduled to be occurring at a more timely moment in world history. You can look forward to some very exciting updates from that, and I'm sure that there will be countless numbers of emerging developments that are going to be occurring on the global stage as well. So, by all means, become active in what we're doing; join our 2018 Campaign to Win the Future; get a copy of this new special report, Volume 2 of "The New Silk Road Becomes the World Land-Bridge." And stay tuned to larouchepac.com, because we have a lot of work to do. Thank you very much, and we'll see you on Monday.